TION-SOME FEATURES.

COSTLY FIREWORKS FOR CLEVELAND'S INAUGURATION—SOME FEATURES.

Early yesterday morning a party of fifty mechanics crossed over to the city from East New-York and passing down Broadway turned into a side street and stopped in front of the buildings occupied by a large dealer in the troops. The men looked as if there might be a strike and the crowd was rapidly swelled by people who were passing so as to block the sidewalk, but the workmen were shortly admitted into the building and the temporary excitement passed away.

"It is samply a party of workmen from our factory whom we are taking to Washington to begin work on the sinauguration Day display of fireworks," explained the secretary of the lireworks company. "They begin work to-morrow and they will be busy from that time, including Sunday, until Saturday week, with the preparations."

"Will it require as many men as that?"

"Oh, these are only a small portion of the force. The work will employ 150 men, but the test will be obtained in Washington."

"How will the display compare with the old Jefferson and Jackson times?"

"Oh, it's all gammon to talk about what they did in those days. They were mere babies in the pyrotechnic art, you know, It would make Thomas Jefferson's eyes stand out of his head to see the display we will give. It will be by three or four times the greatest ever made in this country. We start in with a picture of Jefferson in yellow and colored fires that will be sixty feet high and thirty feet wide. Then the representation of the Capitol will be 65 by 150 feet. It will show portraits of Cleveland and Hendricks on either side, and figures representing Peace, Prosperity, Commerce and Industry grouped about the building. Our special feature will be a picture of Niagara Falls, giving a profile view of the great cataract. This is on a larger scale than anything that has been attempted before. It will be 65x300 feet, or, to give a better idea of the dimensions, as hinh as a six-story house and the length of an average block. The whole affair will

Policeman Murray and his family.

Pearl-st, near Chatham was filled yesterday afternoon with an immense throng of people who crowded about the entrance of Undertaker Kennety's shop, to get a look at the bodies of Policeman Murray and his family. They struggled and pushed notwithstanding the frequent announcement, "None but friends of the corpses admitted." Many succeeded in breaking through into the rear room where the bodies iay, taose of the children in white coffins lined with satin, and the bodies of Murray, his wife and mother-in-law in coffins covered with black and trimmed with velvet. Upon the coffins were beautiful floral pieces, the most of which were presented by Murray's fellow-policemen, cards being attached with the inscription: "The sympathies of the officers of the First Precinct." The features of the dead women and children

"The sympathies of the officers of the First Precinet."

The features of the dead women and children were calm and peaceful in appearance and were tiuged with a slight roseate hue that simulated a healthy sleep. Murray's face had that look of agony which was upon it when his body was found by the firemen, produced probably not from fear for himself but by anxiety for his family. Those who looked upon the faces of the dead, especially the women, passed out into the street weeping, many of them giving voice to loud groans. Their expressions of grief became contagious. The deuse mass of people, attracted the most of them by curiosity, became infected with grief, and the houses echoed back the sobs of women and strong men, which increased to loud lameatations that lasted until the funeral procession disappeared in Chatham-st. The bodies of the adults were placed in three black hearses with black plumes, and those of the children in three small white hearses with snowy plumes. Two abreast they were slowly drawn along Chatham-st, to the Bridge, preceded by nearly the whole of the First Precinct force, with crape on their arins, led by Sergeants Oates and McClintock, and followed by fifteen carriages, centaining Mrs. Garrahan, Murray's aunt, John Moiley, the uncle of Mrs. Murray, their families and friends, and friends of the Murray family. When the procession reached the Bridge the policemen were drawn up in double lines, and as the hearses passed they raised their clubs in a tinal salute to their comrade. Then with drooped heads and moist eyes they returned to duty.

The procession continued on its way over the Bridge and through Brooklyn to the Flatbush Cemetery, where a short funeral service was said. The six coffins were them placed in a vauit, where they will remain until Murray's brothers arrive from Kansas. They live a short distance from Holy-rood in that State, where they own farms. Telegrams were sent them on Monday, but no reply had been received yesterday. They are supposed to be snowed in at their homes.

TALKING ABOUT HOT-BEDS AND PEACHES.

Two short but interesting papers were read yesterday at the meeting of the Farmers Cinb. The first ene, upon "Hot-beds," was by John M. Stahlof Quincy, 'll. The writer said that it was a common mistake to suppose that hot-beds derive a large part of their heat from the sun. The object of the glass covering was to admit not warmth, but light. The manner used was the chef source of heat and furnished a uniform temperature, whereas the heat of the sun was variable during the day and ceases with sunset. Hence it was not necessary that hot-beds should be exposed to the sun's rays directly, although light was necessary to growing plants.

The second paper, upon "Peach Culture," was written by J. T. Lovett, of New-Jersey. The writer gave a number of practical suggestions for the cultivation of fruit trees. They require a warm soil, without too much vegetable matter, and not near standing water. A sandy loam is the best. The best manure for a peach orchard is wood ashes, as the trees are great consumers of potash. They also require phosphoric acid, which may best be applied in the form of bone dust. A premium was awarded to David M. Stone for a fine collection of orchida plants.

MR. GRACE PROMISES TO HELP THE LADIES.

Mrs. Mathilds Wendt, Mrs. Eliza G. Sparks, Mrs. Cecihe Fendler, and Mrs. Francis F. Hiebel, of the Ladies' Health Protective Association, called on the Mayor vesterday and made coapiaint against the staughter-houses in the district bounded by Forty-second and Forty-eighth sts., First-ave, and the East River. They said that on January 1 they visited all those places, and found none directly on the water front, as the law requires. To no one of them can cattle be brought directly either by boat or cars, as the sanitary code requires. With the exception of the slaughter-house of Vanderbeck & Co., no house has a concrete floor, as the law preseribes. Most of them have wooden floors, in many cases resting on the ground. Both the floors and the ground beneath become saturated with blood. It is further asserted that the attempts made by the Health authorities to remedy this condition of things have been spasmodic and without lasting result. The committee asked the Mayor to take the matter in hand, and give the people in tenement houses to that vicinity the relief they should have. The — ayor promised thoroughly to consider the matter.

DENYING THE RUMOR OF A STRIKE. MR. GRACE PROMISES TO HELP THE LADIES

DENYING THE RUMOR OF A STRIKE.

The rumor of a proposed car-drivers' strike continues to be talked of pretty generally, but it is as generally denied by the managers of the several lines. The drivers are reticent and fear to say anything, looking upon all questioners as spies. Superintendent Wilson, of the Eighth Avenue line, said vesterday that he did not think the men would be so foothardy as to go on strike. "Times are so bad now," he added, "that we should find little difficulty in getting many more men than we should want in such a case." should want in such a case."
"I know nothing at all about it," said a Sixth-ave driver.

"Do you think if we were going to strike we should be such fools as to show our hand and then get dismissed? We would all be glad of a reduction from fifteen to twelve hours a day, the system that obtained before the elevated cars began running."

RETURNING PAUPER IMMIGRANTS.
The Commissioners of Emigration yesterday sent back to Hamburg nineteen destitute Hungarian immigrants who arrived a few days ago on the steamer Moravia. They will send back on the steamerh p Eider, which sails to-day, twenty other destitute immigrants who were landed here as paupers. It is said that many "bookers" for some of the steamship lines, and agents for immigrant boarding-houses here, are travelling through Hungary en foot inducing everybody who can raise a few dollars to come to America, saying that there is an abundance of work here for all who seek it, and carefully concealing the fact that there are hundreds now in-Castle Garden praying to get employment, and hving on short allowances of food.

FEATURES OF A NEW PARK BILL. A bill will be introduced in the Legislature to-day to amend that passed last year laying out pub-lic places and parks and parkways in the Tweaty-third and Twenty-fourth Wards and in the adja-cent district in Westchester Caunty. The new bill repeals so much of the old act as appropriates about 2,000 acres of land in Westchester County and alboulevard to reach them. The largest of these parks was Pelham Park on the Sound. It sets aside a strip of laad near these parks which would be open to taxation and another strip between Woodland Cemetery and the parks subject to taxation. The new bill provides that all the new parks shall be within the city, and the city is not obliged to take lands in any year that will exceed $1,600,000 in value. The bill also repeals that part of the act which requires the Commissioners of Appraisal to report on all the parks proposed to be taken at once, and asks for the appointment by the Justices of the Supreme Court of three new Commissioners of Appraisal.

THE RECORD ER CARRIES HIS POINT.

CONDITIONS ON WHICH MR. OLIVER SECURED AN ADJOURNMENT.

The case of August Platt, accused of abduction, was called for trial yesterday before Recorder Smyth, in the Court of General Sessions. There was an iron-clad stipulation between Assistant District-Attorney Nicoll and John D. Townsend, the prisoner's counsel, that the case should be tried yesterday, in spite of all other engagements. The case is one in which the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children has taken great interest. Kate Cavanagh, the complainant, who is only fiftien years old, declares that she was kept in a Chatham-st. resort for several days. Platt is alleged to be the proprietor of the place, and is said to be worth $200,000 or $300,000. Platt was bailed immediately after his arrest, but representations have recently been made by officers of the Society which led District-Attorney Martine to apply to Recorder Smyth for a bench warrant. Platt has been watched by detectives for nearly two weeks and was arrested on Monday night, as it was feared on account of his reputed wealth and the near approach of his trial that he would leave the city. He is low-browed and has a heavy, coarse mustache. He was before the Recorder with Assemblyman James Oliver as his counsel. Mr. Martine appeared in person.

Mr. Oliver told the Recorder that Mr Townsend, who represented the defendant, was trying a case before Judge Barrett. The Recorder, who said that the case should go on under the stipulation. Mr. Oliver made various negatious pleas, but did not make any impression on the Recorder, who said that the case must be tried immediately, unless the counsel would accept three conditions for an adjournment to Monday. The case, he said, if altorned, must proceed on Monday, wherever the counsel might be; the defendant must remain in prison, and the deposition of the mother of the girl must be taken. The mother lives in New-Jersey, and her husband is said to object to her absences when the trial is called.

A STAGE-OWNER FAVORS JACOB SHARP. MR. WILKINS'S PRIVATE BUSINESS-THE WORS

THING THAT EVER STEUCK HIM.

William H. Wilkins, principal proprietor of the Broadway and Madison Avenue line of stages, vesterday appeared before the Broadway Surface Katicold Commission in support of the railroad scheme of Jacob Sharp, who recently testified that his company had made an arrangement for buying all the Broadway stage lines if the right to construct a railroad in Broadway is obtained. Mr. Wilkins deposed that by an agreement between him and the proprietors of the Fifth Avenue and the Twent-third Street stage lines, each runs seventy omnibuses. He gave the gross receipts of his line for the past four years as follows: 1881, $221,368 80; 1882, $204,625 80; 1883, $187,625 90; 1884, $171,698 30; total, $785,318 80; average per year, $198,329 70. The average gross receipts of the three Broadway stage lines for the four years was $594,979 10, and about one-half of this was received in fares below Fourteenth-st.

Mr. Beaman-Are you making tooney! Mr. Wilkins-Well-doing a little something.

The witness said that his line had 475 horses After the fare was reduced to live cents in 1870 the receipts were about doubled. Afterward the elevated roads diminished the receipts of the stage lines. Mr. Beaman read an extract from a speech made by the witness before the Board of Aldermen, in which he had opposed Mr. Sharp's proposed raisoned.

Mr. Scribner said that was the wittess's private business.

"Yes, that appears to be his private business," replied Mr. Beaman. "I won't press him."

Mr. Witkins, who said that he had formerly driven a stage, thought a Browlway rai-road would be a good thing. "The worst thing that ever struck me," he said, "was that cent that Vanderbilt took off the fare on his Fourth Avenue street cars. That reduced the income of our stage lines. Vanderbilt said to me homself, says he, "People will walk three or four blocks to save that one cent."

UNABLE TO TELL HOW COTTRELL DIED.

Michael Wooley, a produce dealer of West Washington Market, and a brother-in-law of Charles H.

Cottrell, whose sudden death on Monday of last week caused suspicions of foul play, went before Justice Patterson in the Tombs Police Court vesterday. With him were a brother of the deast man; E. F. Buerneyer, proprieter of the hquor-store from which Cottrell staggered just before his death; his bookkeeper, Henry Schwakenberg, and Charles Hoff, a boy fourteen years old. Mr. Wooley presented a sworn statement by Dr. C. Knecht, of Matawan, giving the results of a post-mortein examination of Cottrell's body on Friday.

Charles Hoff and that he was in the grog shop on the day that Cottrell died, and heard Cottrell and Robert Cornish quarreling. "Cornish," he said, "called Charlie a biank biank and Charlie called him the same thing back. Then Hoh hit him in the eye and seized hold of him by the coat collan. They struggled a little and then Charlie fell and struck his head against the iron foot-rail in front of the bar." The barkeeper said that he didn't see any inting at all, and Mr. Buermeyer repeated the story told by him in The Tribune of Monday as counting from him.

Justice Patterson told the wilness to come before him at 10 a. m. to-day. As they were leaving the court room the brother of Cottrell said: "Fil go to the Governor of New-Jersey. He'll see that something is done." Mr. Wooley has been actively engaged wer since the death of his brother-in-law in trying to discover how he received his death blow. Many rumors have been circulated, among others that he was struck with a slung-shot.

PLANNING FOR A NEW BANK BUILDING. PLANNING FOR A NEW BANK BUILDING.

The Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank yesterday opened temporary offices at No. 57 Chambers-st., in the Stewart building, which it will occupy until its new building is completed. The institution owns the house and lot No. 51 Chambers-st., where it has been so long, and also the adjoining property, No. 49, which the trustees purchased three years ago for $132,000. The old buildings will be torn down and on the site will be creeted a substantial fire-proof building occupying the entire area of the two lots, forty-eight feet wide and 150 feet deep, fronting on both Chambers and Reade sts. The plans are not yet drawn, but the building committee were in conference yesterday with the architect. The edifice will probably be of granite and will cost about $350,000.

TWO GANG-LEADERS SAFE FOR A TIME.

Michael Collins, the ruflianly young leader of the Tenth Avenue gang, was before iteoriser Smyth yesterday for sentence under a conviction of highway robbery as a second offence. He and other members of the gang attacked Terence Cavanagh, of Jersey City, on the nights of November 16, at Eleventh-ave, and Twenty-third-st. While one of his assailants held Cavanagh another robbed him of a pocketbook containing $45. Collins, though only twenty-three years old, has served two terms in prison. Recorder Smyth sentenced him to twenty years in the State Prison, the lowest punishment for the offence of which he was convicted. John McGrath, one of Collins's assistants in the robbery, was also convicted and was sentenced yesterday by the Recorder to fifteen years' imprisonment. TWO GANG-LEADERS SAFE FOR A TIME.

ORANGE.—Since the East Orange Roller Skating Rink was opened, on September 29. It has earned $25,000 over and above all expenses, about the cost of the building and ground. ... Early vesterday a large frame building, at Wallace and Day sts., was found to be on fire in the second floor. The building is a tenement house, occupied by three families, the ground floor being used as a liquor shop. The fire was extinguished with pails of water. On a bed in a room on the second floor was found the charred body of Mrs. Jane Whalen, age sixty-five, a hat trimmer. She had overturned the lamp and set fire to her clothing. age sixty-five, a hat trimmer. She ha the lamp and set fire to her clothing.

SEQUELS TO THE WILLIAMS TRIAL. NO DECISION BY THE BOARD-BITTERNESS AMONG PROMINENT OFFICERS,

It was expected that the Board of Poince would reach a decision in the case of Captain Williams vesterday: but Commissioner Matthews was not present at the meeting of the Board, and no mention present at the meeting of the board, and no mention of Captain Williams appeared in the minutes of the meeting except that the Board received and placed on file a letter from William H. Webb, who expressed his esteem for the Captain. The testimony given at the trial has not been written out by the official stenographers, and one of the Commissioners said the case would not be decided until the somers said the case would not be decided until the record was in the possession of the floard. Although the Commissioners have been careful not to ex-press their convictions on the evidence presented, the prevailing opinion among policemen is that the charges will be dismissed, General Porter probably The betterness among prominent police officers charges will be dismissed, General Porter probably dissenting.

The bitterness among prominent police officers, growing out of the Williams trial, has become more noticeable since Sunday. The captains have been divided into rival factions according as they sympathize with Superintendent Walting or with Captain Milliams and Inspector Thorne. There is no doubt that charges against Inspector Thorne have been prepared, and that the decision in the Williams case will have an effect either to prevent those charges from coming before the Board or to hasten the prosecution of the Inspector. Captain Brogan, of the Fifteenth Freemet, thas been outspoken in his disapproval of the line of defence adopted by Captain Williams, claiming that the load of blame was transferred from the shoulders of Williams to those of the other captains. Particular dislike has been expressed to the attempt to show that the Captain was persecuted for permitting gambling to go on in the Twenty-ninth Precinct, while other captains were not disturbed, although the gambliers operated in their precincts also. That part of the defence has been characterized as pleading the baby act, and hot words have been exchanged on the subject between the captains. Mr. Walling's expression of opinion, while under oath, that inspector Thorne had deliberately attempted to deceive him, has added fuel to the flames of discord. While some of the Superintendent's words, others declare that the allusions of Williams and his counsel to the testimony of young Frank Walling were equally scandalous. Whatever decision is made by the Board of Police, it is evident that harmony in the Department will not be restored for a long time.

The Board yesterday promoted Roundsmen Judson Golden and Thomas Farley to the rank of sergeant of police. Sergeants John Kelly, of the Fourth Percenct, and P. J. McNally of the Fifteenth Precinct, were ordered to change places. The same orders were given to Sergeants Thomas L. Heape, of the Twelfth, and George B. Osborne of the Imspector Byrnes to

TURNING IN HIS ACCOUNTS. The quartermaster of one of the West-ern regiments in the war was required to turn in his accounts. We studged over them for several days, but was unable to make head r tail of them. Finally a peremptory order came for him to turn in his accounts at once. In dispair he put all his papers in a barrel, headed it up, and sent it to the Department at Washington. With it he sent a letter saying:

"SIR: In obedience to orders I herewith forward my accounts as per barrel. If you can make anything out of them it is more than I can."
